Art Unit: 2153

1. Claims 1-20 are presented for examination.

2. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

3. Claims 5-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter as being an intangible media (e.g., a program, a procedure, etc.) and an abstract idea because a computer program product is not clearly tangibly embodied in a manner so as to be executable, and it is a non-functional descriptive material. Thus these claims 16-20 are not tangible.

4. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. §102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

5. Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. §102(e) as being anticipated by Takeda et al. [U.S. Pub. 2004/0179539].

6. Takeda et al anticipates (e.g., see Figs. 1-28) the invention substantially as claimed. Taking claim 1 as an exemplary claim, the reference anticipates a communication system (e.g., see Figs. 1-2, 23-26) comprising: a device management computer (e.g., see a network equipment 31 of Figs. 21, § 169); a data concentrator computer (e.g., server 11) for communicating with said device management computer; a gateway device (GW in Fig. 1, § 169) for communicating with said data concentrator computer; and a plurality of mobile data acquisition devices (MN 3, 9), each of said plurality of mobile data acquisition devices communicating with said gateway device (e.g., see § 48, mobile terminal X in § 41, 43 and 45, HA of Fig. 21, claim 1) said gateway device performing pre-processing functions (e.g., authentication functions, § 48) on data collected by said plurality of mobile data acquisition devices prior to transferring the data to said data concentrator computer.

7. As to claim 2, Takeda et al further anticipates a workstation (HA, § 43 and 45) for communicating with said gateway device.

8. As to claim 3, Takeda et al further anticipates said workstation provides access to resources of said workstation by said plurality of mobile data acquisition devices through said gateway device (e.g., see § 43 and 45).

9. As to claim 4, it is inherent that a mobile unit (e.g., see § 48) includes a processor, a memory, a display, a keyboard, and a battery (e.g., PDA, Notebook, etc.,)

10. As to claim 5, Takeda et al further anticipates each of said plurality of mobile data acquisition devices performs a batch download of said data (packet transmission, § 48-52) to said gateway device.

11. As to claim 6, Takeda et al further anticipates each of said plurality of mobile data acquisition devices performs a real time download of said data (packet transmission, § 48-52) to said gateway device.

12. As to claim 7, Takeda et al further anticipates said gateway device converts said data to an appropriate interface (this is inherent function of a gateway) for transferring said data to said data concentrator computer.

13. As to claim 8, Takeda et al further anticipates said gateway device provides communication to a printer (this is matter of connecting a well known printer to the GW).

14. As to claim 9, Takeda et al further anticipates said gateway provides communication to a diskette drive (not shown in MN 3 and 9).

15. As to claim 10, Takeda et al further anticipates said data concentrator computer (server 11) is dedicated to a single software application (e.g., one of the protocol that the server 11 is using).

16. Claims 11-20 are similar in scope as of claims 1-10, and therefore claims 11-20 are rejected for the same reasons set forth above for claims 1-10.

17. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

The references are cited in the Form PTO-892 for the applicant's review.

A shortened statutory period for response to this action is set to expire 3 (three) months and 0 (zero) days from the mail date of this letter. Failure to respond within the period for response will result in ABANDONMENT of the application (see 35 U.S.C 133, M.P.E.P 710.02, 710.02(b)).
